"One of British football's all-time great goal scorers"

In detail

John took a long time to reach the top of the game, plying his early trade in non-league football on Merseyside before getting his break in the professional game with Newport County. He then joined Oxford United in 1984 when the club were in the old Third Division. He broke the club's record of goals in a season in 84/85 as the U's got promoted to the old First Division. He also played in and won the League Cup in 1986, with Oxford, beating QPR at Wembley. John finally hung up his boots in 1998 in a club and country career spanning 882 appearances and 474 goals.
