"An international Cricket legend"

In detail

His career started from his college days in 1980s. In 1998 he played for Lancashire Country Cricket Club in England and won the ECB Trophy as their captain. He played a significant role in winning the 1992 World Cup for Pakistan by taking the most wickets - a total of 55 in 38 matches. He is one of three bowlers who have taken four hat-tricks in International Cricket. He is known as 'Sultan of Swing' and holds a Pakistani record of taking 414 wickets in 104 matches in test cricket. He has remained the first bowler in International Cricket who has taken 400 wickets in both forms of cricket.
